Johann Michael Fischer Gymnasium Burglengenfeld

Q12

My fellow Americans, first of all I'd like to thank all of my supporters, all my colleagues and over all the people of the United States of America. Not only for all the votes, but also for your endurance, courageousness, volition and patience. I am so proud of you

„I have a dream that my four little children will one day live in a nation where they will not be judged by the colour of their skin [...]”. Yet, 57 years later I sadly can't say Martin Luther King's dream has been fulfilled. Black parents still have to teach their children to remain calm when being pulled over by a cop, just to have a higher chance to escape police brutality once more. They tell them to always move slowly, keep their hands where the policemen can see them and do whatever they're being told to do. As the Black Lives Matter Movement legitimately proclaims, systematic racism still exists in our criminal justice framework and has to be eliminated. We as a country have to reunite and fight together to finally make his dream come true.

Apart from that, I think it's dreadful and painful to think about drowning families, who are seeking our shore, about children who are kept in overfilled refugee camps indefinitely, and about them dying because of a lack of adequate care. Over the last few years this was the fate of millions of people with the numbers still rising.

The way we handle immigrants is a moral failure and a national shame, the way we want to build a wall to protect us, instead of helping them by building refugee camps where they can live under decent conditions or welcome them in our communities. We have to modernize our complete immigration system and reassert our commitment to asylum seekers and refugees, by securing the border while ensuring the dignity of migrants and their right to seek asylum. America should be a great example for every other country by tackling the root causes of illegal immigration. We need to end wars or help the people who are still living under inhuman conditions, with violence and insecurity, a lack of economic opportunity and a corrupt government, in their native countries. For a future without targeting minorities, violating or tearing apart families.

Change, folks. Change is inevitable. Just look at the American population, which tripled over the last century. So, now there are more than 300 million proud Americans under the hands of mine. 300 millions I am willing to care about and 300 millions I am willing to devote my life to. With the competent Kamala Harris by my side and my whole party supporting me, I am going to embrace that good change that happened today and will face the big ugly monsters, like the change of our precious climate. I promise you, I will not fight hurricanes with nuclear bombs and I will not try to twitter it away, but I will, with all your hope of a better future, tackle that issue so hard, with so many efforts that it will not dare to stand up again. I promise you to right the wrong. First step: The USA will again take part in the Paris Climate Change Accords to work hand in hand with other nations as it is supposed to be. Also, we will lower our carbon emissions.

Change can be good, folks, it just depends on the people, and America has the best, damn right it has!

And I promise you, the people of the United States of America, that we are not only going to deal with the whole pandemic situation in a proper way, but we are also going to defeat this foe that is currently complicating the life of everyone.

In order to fight the virus, it is our responsibility to ensure that every family has access to free corona-tests and vaccines. Every vote for the Democrats was a vote for the Affordable Care Act that will ease the burden of health care on every family. Health care will no longer be a privilege. Everyone should have access to health care and health insurance. And this, my fellow Americans, is something that I'm working very hard towards to.

This pandemic has shown us, just how flawed our health care system really is. Countless people have died during the pandemic and rising numbers won't stop if we don't work together. If we want to defeat this invisible enemy, we will have to function as a solidaric community that cares for one another and that doesn't want to be responsible for thousands of deaths.

I know I'm asking a lot. I know the last few months have been especially difficult. I know you want this nightmare to end. But I beg you: stay strong and be reasonable. Every one of us will get through this.

Individuals. Every one of us is diverse from all the others. So how make an educational system that fits everyone and everyone's needs? This is one of my tasks, a task I am willing to face. But first we have to think about what education actually means. Well there isn't something not worth mentioning but to break it down, the most important meanings are wealth, prosperity, economical growth and a young and auspicious generation. However it is not something happening overnight, it takes thought through precautions, cooperation, and a very smart youth which I don't doubt we do have.

This is what I will be tackling, improving the educational system and the effective and productive co-work of schools and the economy in order to create the best future for our students in high school, college or at university. I remember myself being in the situation of asking myself what I want to do or what skill I wanted to go after, well it wasn't sports, that's for sure, but I had no idea until I had to vote for the president. I felt unprepared to bare such a huge responsibility. But that's what it is. Education is a great responsibility and honour for everybody. And now, 50 years later, I want to provide every student with more sense of what is out there in the world to prepare them, to make their life and decisions easier. I also want to comfort the students, because the economy needs them, we need them, so it is my responsibility to create a supportive environment, a smart system and a smooth transition to prepare them for what follows. Considering our youth making up the majority of the population, there are no light decisions, but we have to make steps in one way or another, but in one way or another we will learn and finally get forward. I will try. I promise!

My fellow citizens of the world: ask not what America will do for you, but what together we can do for the freedom of man.

Finally, whether you are citizens of America or citizens of the world, ask of us the same high standards of strength and sacrifice which we ask of you. With a good conscience our only sure reward, with history the final judge of our deeds, let us go forth to lead the land we love, asking its blessing and its help, but knowing that here on earth God's work must truly be our own.

And now, each in our way we must answer his call.

Thank you and God bless you all.
